How will the city promote affordable housing?

Canon City aims to promote affordable housing through several strategies outlined in the Comprehensive Plan. The city recognizes the challenges posed by a low rental market vacancy rate and rising housing prices, which have made it difficult for locally employed households to afford homes. To address this, the city plans to regularly meet with local developers and builders to evaluate incentives for developing attainable housing. These incentives may include:

- Density bonuses
- Expedited processing
- Parking reductions
- Tax abatements

Additionally, the city encourages the development of
